Handy Hints for Revision

The most common mistake students make when they revise is that they think all they have to do is to read through their notes. This is called passive revision and can have some effect but is NOT a good strategy to use as your brain will struggle to take in the information.

Instead, your brain will remember the information far better if you do active revision. This means that you actually do stuff with the information you are trying to remember. This approach forces your brain to think about the information and the following examples give you some ideas on how to do it:

REVISION GUIDES These can be bought on every subject - just make sure you buy the right one for your Exam Board.	REVISION BOOKLETS Many teachers will give these to you to help you revise - make sure you do them !	REVISION CARDS Make or buy cards - no bigger than a small envelope - and make colourful notes on 1 topic per card.	PAST PAPERS See your teacher for Past Paper questions - read them, jot down answers, and have a go at them !
SELF-TESTING Write a list of questions on topics you think you should know - cover the answers and test yourself or get someone to test you.	BULLET POINT NOTES Condense your notes over and over by listing information under bullet points and sub-headings - use signs and symbols too.	PEEL PARAGRAPHS For written exams write notes on answers using PEEL - give a P oint, an E xample, E xplain it and L ink it to another topic.	MIND MAPS
POST ITS Write down key facts and keywords and put them around the house - see them everywhere and get family to learn them too !	APPS & ON-LINE There are loads of free or cheap apps that you can use to revise - and join www.getrevising.co.uk for BBC Bitesize for great stuff.	ANNOTATION Get your exercise book, notes, etc, and read them, highlight them, cut them up, link points - anything to makes them work for you.	REVISION SESSIONS IN SCHOOL Even after Study Leave begins there will be lots of sessions in school - talk to your tutor and listen and look out for details.
